ISIS

Inspirational Software²

*In the beginning there was Cara. Now, we bring you ISIS;
the most intuitive, easy to use and beautiful software that has ever been available to homeopaths.*

The only software to combine repertory, materia medica, remedies and dictionary in one, easy to use, interface.

Using the latest technology, ISIS has been developed to make your life easier. The repertories are clearly presented making navigation through rubrics as simple as typing a few letters on the keyboard. There are no complex commands to memorize. ISIS displays relevant information on one screen making it instantly accessible to you with a single click. With the use of tabs, you can quickly and easily access repertories, materia medicas, dictionary, search results and more. When viewing Materia Medica, in addition to the full information provided by the different authors, you will have access to keynote, relationships, miasms, families and so on.

Searching the library is a breeze! ISIS can quickly scan hundreds of volumes including repertories simultaneously. Using Family or Kingdom search criteria the results are delivered to you instantly in beautiful charts allowing you to explore and use numerous analysis strategies. The ISIS search mechanism provides you with a lot of computing power right at your fingertips.

ISIS also provides hundreds of multi-media entries, comprising beautiful, full color images accompanied by audio lectures presented by the world's leading homeopaths. Analysis, from both repertory and materia medica, is supported. The results are displayed in attractive screens with easy to understand colour graphs and charts. The very latest thinking from homeopathic masters is included, from Scholten's use of the periodic table through to Sankaran's latest insights into plant families and miasms.

The story of ISIS - David Witko

"When I developed the first Cara system back in 1981 I had no idea what would result. Cara started as a software system for the Royal London Homeopathic Hospital who wanted to repertorise using Kent's Repertory. In those early days I worked closely with Dr Michael Jenkins and we worked hard to make Cara easy to use. In fact the name chosen, Cara, means 'friendly' in Gaelic. Throughout the 80's and 90's Cara continued to develop and grow. During this time Cara gained the reputation of being really easy to use and a cost-effective way of getting started with homeopathic computer software. Subsequent upgrades and developments saw it transform into a wonderful software tool, used by thousands of homeopaths all over the world.

At the start of the 21st century I decided the time was right to create a new homeopathic software program. This work has taken 2 years of my life and has been named ISIS. ISIS is the first genuinely new homeopathic software product that has been released for many years. Although homeopathy has been well served by the various software products available, most of them were written many years ago. Even relatively old computers have much greater capabilities than are being used. And of course homeopaths are becoming more sophisticated in their demands of their software as they realise the possibilities.

We know that most homeopaths use only a limited part of their software because it is difficult or complex (even with Cara which many believe to be the simplest to use). So when designing ISIS I have ensured that even greater ease of use was the top priority. I wanted to create something visually appealing that homeopaths would enjoy using every day. A programme where it is easy to get around from one feature to another without having to memorise a complex route - and where as much information as possible is on the screen at one time. And I wanted to offer homeopaths the opportunity to use their computer to analyse their cases using the models developed recently by some of the masters of homeopathy.

You can start using ISIS as soon as it is installed, and get terrific results. Then as time goes by and as your knowledge and practice develops ISIS will support your journey. Even though we have a great many homeopathic friends who share their thinking with us, ISIS has been designed to give the flexibility to work as you wish, and aims to enrich your homeopathic practice. I hope you enjoy ISIS ! "
